Board decision on school plans must come Tues. Jacobs says

Canyon School Board members, aiming for another bond issue election in mid-February, must decide Tuesday night exactly what to ask the people to vote on at the election.

Supt. Jerry Jacobs, who along with his administrative staff has proposed three alternatives for new school construction, said Thursday night it is possible the board might place all three proposals on the Feb. 17 bond issue election ballot to assess voter sentiment.

Board members will meet in a special session Monday night to discuss the three proposals, first made public last week during a Tuesday night board meeting.

The final decision must be made Tuesday night, Jacobs said, so Dallas bond attornies will have time to process all the paperwork connected with the election.

Beginning last Wednesday, Jacobs began a crash program to assess public opinion on the three proposals he submitted for board consideration.

Seven meetings were scheduled by the school staff to run through Monday afternoon and invitations were sent to local residents to attend the meetings to hear the staff present the proposals.

"Our intent is to try to get some feedback from several people," Jacobs said of the special meetings.

The sessions were held Wednesday afternoon, Thursday afternoon and evening, Friday afternoon and evening, and three sessions are scheduled Monday, at 10 a.m., 2 p.m. and 4 p.m.

Two meetings were held for school district employees.

Jacobs said the format of the meetings would be adjusted so the staff could receive responses from those attending the sessions on pros and cons of each of the three proposals.

"Really what we're trying to find out is which one of the three would be the most acceptable in people's opinion and we'd like for them to, in general, give us feedback from other people they talk to," he said.

The school staff also sent out questionnaires with Canyon elementary school students last week for parents to fill out and return.

The questionnaires asked parents which of the three proposals they would favor and asked them to sign the slip and return it to the schools.

Jacobs said Thursday night during one session with local residents that several questionnaires had been returned and some statistical findings from the questionnaires would be presented the board Tuesday night.

The three school construction plans presented by Jacobs and which will be considered Monday and Tuesday night by the board call for:

*Construction of a new 700-student high school and a new 450-student elementary school in the north part of the district at a cost of $6 million. This proposal was defeated at the polls on Dec. 9.

*Construction of expanded facilities at Canyon High School to accommodate 700 more students and construction of a new elementary school in the north part of the district. Total cost would be about $4.7 million.

*Construction of expanded facilities at Canyon High to accommodate about 300 more students and construction of a new elementary school and a new middle school in the north part of the district at a cost of about $4.7 million.

"Most people agree the primary reason the bond issue (of Dec. 9) failed was because of the tax increase," Jacobs told citizens Thursday night. "Undoubtedly this was the most important reason."

Jacobs said a $4.8 million or $5 million bond issue for new schools would increase local school taxes by between 20 and 23 per cent for bonded indebtedness alone. The $6 million construction proposal defeated in December would have increased taxes, according to Jacobs, by about 26 per cent.

School board members will apparently not review a bond payout schedule this week as they decide what to put on the Feb. 17 bond issue ballot.

Bob Davis of an Amarillo financial advisory firm said he lacks adequate information on the probable tax base for the upcoming year to prepare an accurate pay-out schedule.

Board members have not yet decided how they will handle taxes for next year. One proposal before them asks that the assessed valuation be hiked to 100 per cent and the tax rate adjusted according to the budgetary needs of the district. The proposal also calls for a readjustment of CISD valuations to reflect 1976 market values.

Stan Collins, chairman of a local Taxpayers Revolt Committee Against the School Bonds, is expected to meet with school board members at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday before the board's regular session.

Collins asked for the meeting more than a week ago to discuss alternatives with the board, saying he wanted to avoid another confrontation over the bond issue.

Collins says Marsh connection has no influence on his stand

Stan Collins, leader of opposition to a proposed new school bond issue, submitted Saturday a sworn statement that he has no business interests in Southwest Amarillo disputed sections and has not been influenced to lead the opposition by any persons who do.

Collins filed the sworn statement at the request of The News in response to a letter to the editor in today's paper. The letter notes that Collins offices with Stanley Marsh III, Amarillo entrepreneuer and businessman.

Collins also filed a disclosure of assets, which indicates that while he is a partner with Marsh in several ventures, none of those ventures lie within lands which might in the future be developed to the southwest of Amarillo.

Collins' statement in its entirety, reads:

> "I do not own any property and/or have financial interest in any property which would be affected by any proposed realignment of school district boundaries between the Canyon Independent School District and the Amarillo Independent School District nor do I presently plan to acquire any such property or financial interests.

"My interest in defeating any proposed bond election to build schools for Amarillo children at Canyon taxpayers expense is from my standpoint as a Canyon taxpayer and resident and for no other reason.

"I am a booster of this entire area and I feel that a realignment of school districts is in order to assure the continued growth of Amarillo to the southwest and with the obvious resultant long range benefits to our town, Canyon.

"Also, in response to your telephone inquiry may I state that although my office is in the same suite as Stanley Marsh's office and we are partners in some real estate ventures, most of which are out-of-state and only one is located in Amarillo, we have not discussed my political action in this issue and I do not know what, if any, benefit he could possibly receive from realignment of school district boundaries and he has in no way been involved in my decisions or actions in this matter."

In a telephone interview Friday, Collins said he has no knowledge, either of any land holdings of the Bush Estate in Randall County, particularly in the southwest Amarillo area. Marsh's wife, Wendy, is an heir of the Bush Estate.

"I don't know anything about the Bush Estate or have anything to do with it," he said.

"I do not now work for and never would work for Stanley Marsh," he said. "I'm an independent investor and I office with him because we are partners in a wide-ranging investment pattern, but the only thing we are in partnership in in Amarillo is a restaurant building on Amarillo Blvd."

Collins said he has not been approached or coerced into leading the opposition to the bond issue.

"Honestly, I have not been put up to it in any way," he said.

Merchants ask limit on 4th Ave. parking

A group of university-area Canyon merchants have petitioned city commissioners to limit parking time in front of their shops along 4th Avenue.

But, it appeared last week that Police Chief Al Stewart, who said he understands and sympathizes with the merchants over their problem, may voice objections to the petition when it is considered by commissioners on Feb. 2.

Ken Thompson, owner of Carriage House Shoes, said eight business owners in the block along the south side of 4th Avenue between 23rd and 24th Streets signed the petition.

The petition asks commissioners to pass an ordinance limiting parking in the block. If commissioners accept the petition, parking would be limited to 30 minutes between 8 a.m. and 2 p.m. on weekdays.

Thompson said the business owners are concerned about the number of college students, university instructors and Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum employees who park in front of their businesses all morning or all day.

"A lot of faculty members park there three or four hours at a time," he said. "Museum employees park there all day." This cuts us off."

Thompson said if persons park in front of the businesses throughout the day customers have no place to park except to the rear of his store, where there is also a parking problem.

"We think it's a reasonable request," he said. "It's self-preservation, really."

Thompson said the parking problem was underscored recently when the owner of a lot behind the business block fronting on 5th Ave. asked for an increase in lot lease funds. He said the merchants cannot afford the lease price asked. The parking lot area has been recently sealed from use with large logs.

"We've said we're willing to pay for the signs if they can't afford it," Thompson said of the proposal to city hall. "We don't want anything to hamper getting an ordinance passed."

He said the merchants have also volunteered to help control the parking by marking tires.

Chief Stewart said he is currently assessing the situation on the street and will prepare a presentation for commissioner on the petition on Feb. 2.

"I do see some problems," he said, "but I want to present them before the commission. I am in sympathy with the business people because of the lack of parking, but I definitely have some objections. I don't want to go into them at the present time because it wouldn't be fair to the businessmen or the commission."

City Manager Glen Metcalf said action by the commission on the petition could have impact on other areas of town where parking is a problem. New business areas are required by the zoning ordinance to provide off-street parking, he said.

Fourth set aside for churches

July 3 is date for fete here

America's 200th birthday will be celebrated in Canyon on July 3 rather than July 4, local bicentennial committee members voted Wednesday.

Committee members voted unanimously to put the local celebration back one day so it will occur on a Saturday rather than on Sunday, the 4th.

But they also expressed the hope that Canyon churches will make special efforts to recall their own traditions on the 4th.

"A lot of people want it on the third because they don't want to participate on a Sunday," Mary Alice Hines told committee members. "A lot of people don't like to participate in things besides religious activities on Sunday."

Mrs. Margaret Harper said many of the events already planned for the Canyon bicentennial birthday celebration would probably require a good deal of last-minute preparation which might not be accomplished easily on a Sunday.

"I think the committee should urge churches to look into their own traditions and do something to recall their roots," she said following the favorable vote to schedule Canyon's events on the third.

A full day of events has been planned for the Canyon celebration, Mrs. Jane Stephens, chairman of the festival committee, reported.

The tentative schedule calls for a flag-raising ceremony early in the day by a drill team from Fort Sill, Okla., and a Kiwanis Club girls softball play-off tournament beginning at 10 a.m.

Some time during the morning, she said, the Canyon Volunteer Fire Department will sponsor a water fight with fire trucks.

Exhibits of pioneer crafts will go on display in Conner Park beginning at 1 p.m.

The parade begins at 4:30 p.m. Mrs. Stephens said Mrs. Lady Bird Johnson, widow of former President Lyndon B. Johnson, will be asked to come to Canyon to be parade marshall for the day, and to dedicate a time capsule which will be placed at the base of the flag in the park to the former President.

The annual chamber of commerce sponsored barbecue dinner will be served beginning at 6 p.m. in the park.

During the evening Canyon Boy Scouts will plant trees in the park and the time capsule will be dedicated.

Fireworks will begin at 9:30 p.m., followed by a presentation of patriotic songs by several local choirs.

Mrs. Stephens said in preparation for the big celebration, mem-

Council vote fails on administrator evaluation

Faculty Council members refused on a 6-5 vote Friday to support a proposal that the faculty of West Texas State University evaluate the performance of all administrators.

The vote came after council members indicated, without a formal vote, they also would not support a motion that the council sponsor faculty evaluation of all administrators with the results to be turned over to the university's board of regents.

A majority of council members indicated, though, in individual comments they would support the general concept of faculty evaluation of administrators.

"What's good for the goose is good for the gander," said Council Chairman Walter L. Shelly.

The primary conflict in working out a motion on evaluation of administrators centered around how the evaluation should be handled.

Shelly insisted the council should call on University President Lloyd I. Watkins to establish a faculty-administration committee to work out a faculty evaluation of administrators, while Munsell contended the faculty should be responsible for the evaluation effort.

Munsell withdrew an initial motion that the faculty council sponsor faculty evaluation of the administration — from department head through the president — and turn the results over to the board of regents, but only after several council members questioned the latter part of the motion.

Several suggested the council's purpose is to communicate with the president and it would be out-of-bounds to report to the board of regents.

Others contended that a suggestion made by Henry Moreland that the council conduct a poll of faculty members to assess feelings on problem areas at the university would be more appropriate before the evaluation of administrators.

Council Member Robert Muir, however, opposed the idea of faculty evaluation of administrators.

"We did evaluate the administration three or four years ago and I did see a print-out," he said. "A couple of people got real low scores — they should have been fired — and they're still here. What purpose will it (evaluation of administration) serve, except just to vent our dissatisfaction."

Muir contended also that faculty members are not competent to evaluate all facets of administrative work.

"I question whether the faculty is competent to really evaluate the people," he said. "I don't think we know what their job descriptions are and we're in no position to see what they produce. We see part of it, but it's a small part. Unless we have some specific purpose, I think we're going through a futile exercise."

John Reeves, though, countered that the regional accrediting association requires a faculty evaluation of administration as part of its assessment procedure.

"The Southern Association apparently feels we're competent to evaluate them because that's what we do," he said.

Munsell defended his motion by saying he feels faculty evaluation of administrators would serve several purposes — it would allow faculty members to "vent their frustration;" it would "keep the pressure on" in certain areas; it would establish a system of accountability; it would establish

Community is invited to chamber meet

That's the name given to a special community meeting called by the chamber at 7 p.m. Monday to discuss goals and projects the chamber might consider this year.

Bill Hunter, chairman of the chamber membership committee, said the Monday meeting will have no specific program or presentation.

"We want to try to get people to open up and express their own feelings," he said. "We want to try to derive from them how we can improve."

The sharing of ideas, the airing of complaints, will be the format of the session to which all are invited, Hunter said.

"If we can get a good receptive crowd, I think we can accomplish the goal of the meeting," he said.

The meeting will be at the Canyon community center.

WT student fees unfair

If it is intrinsically unfair for a person to be charged for a service or activity he has absolutely no possibility or desire of using or viewing, and if it is a goal of West Texas State University administrators to make attendance at WTSU as attractive as possible for area students, the current student service fee charged needs a thorough justification.

The student service fee is a mandatory fee charged every student who attends the university. A student signing up for three hours is charged $7.50 per semester. A student taking 12 hours is charged $30 per semester.

From an institutional point of view, it is easy to see why it is desirable to charge all students a flat mandatory fee. Such a procedure certainly streamlines budgeting. It also assures there will be adequate funds for various programs.

Last fall university regents approved the distribution of student service fees on a percentage basis. Under the proposal approved, almost 50 percent of the student service fee total was to go into athletics, with football taking in 23.5 percent of the total or about $91,000, and basketball taking in 12.2 percent or about $47,000.

Other portions of the fee total go to the student association, campus special programs, intramurals, the student senate, the student newspaper, forensics, official functions, the rodeo club, soccer and a substantial amount goes into a contingency fund.

While all this is well and good from an institutional point of view, it is inequitable and burdensome from the individual student point of view.

A mandated student service fee amounts to the forced purchase by a student of tickets to football games, basketball games, special programs, plays, and official functions which, given the attendance record of a good number of these programs he has no desire to attend.

He is in the position of being forced to support an activity he may choose not to support.

This is all notwithstanding the fact that at many events a student is required to support through the student service fee there is no provision for the number of students who have actually paid for tickets or admission.

Consider basketball as a case in point. The Amarillo civic center will hold, when its crammed full, something over 6,000 persons. Assuming Amarillo and Canyon-student basketball fans will purchase something like a thousand season tickets, that leaves room for 5,000 students, if no one else shows up. Practically speaking, all students who have paid for tickets probably couldn't have access to the activity on a given night.

Or consider special programs sponsored through the fee. The ballroom of the activities center, where most of the special programs are conducted, holds about 1,000 persons. That leaves a few thousand students who have purchased tickets involuntarily out in the cold.

Students should not be required to purchase tickets or support programs which they will not attend voluntarily. If enough voluntary support is not engendered, one might ask, to support programs, are the programs truly justified, anyway? — C.W.

Draft planning needed

The time for planning is before the end result of that planning is needed, a statement which is true even though the empirical evidence presented by government daily to the contrary is vast.

The selective service draft, in existence since 1948, for all practical purposes ended last week, although the mechamism is still available should conscription be needed or desired again in the future.

With the machinery of the draft stopped, with the war behind us, now is the time for legislators to begin studying the equitability of the draft laws as they existed for a generation of young Americans mandated to fight the nation's unpopular wars of the mid-century. Now is the time to plan for the future draft mechanism, should it, heaven forbid, ever be needed or desired.

Study will show that the same generation when, for the most part, went quietly to war and returned unhonored, is as much embittered by the procedure used to select them for the unpleasant chore as by the purposes, pursuit and outcome of the conflagration.

If the federal income tax laws are as holy as a sponge, the selective service laws are at least sieve-like. The rich, as in other unpleasantries, were allowed to remove themselves from susceptibility.

While selective service systems are not exactly chic in this campaign season, we'd like to see Sen. Ted Kennedy drag out his late-war proposal for universal conscription, and go one further, to extend the laws to cover women.

If the selective service system is ever needed again, the moment of involvement will not be the best time to alter the system. — C.W.

Letter to the editor

What about Stan Collins' connections?

Dear Mr. Wilson:

As a resident of the Canyon Independent School District and a parent, I decided that I needed to become better informed on the issues of the school bond election. Since I had just read an article in the Globe News about Mr. Stan Collins and his various committee activities, I phoned Mr. Collins' home to discuss the matter with him. Mr. Collins was not home, but I was given his business number where he might be reached. I was told his business was Mach Investment Group. When I phoned the number given me, the girl answered the phone and told me I had reached Marsh Enterprises. I told her I was sorry that I had obviously dialed the wrong number — that I was attempting to phone Stan Collins at Mach Investment Group. The girl assured me that there was no need to apologize — that Mach Investment Group and Marsh Enterprises were one in the same, and that Mr. Collins was out of town.

After hanging up the phone and thinking about what I had just been told, I began to ask myself some very pointed questions. Is it possible there is a powerful special interest group which has absolutely no interest in the quality of education the children receive, but are only interested in clouding the issues of the bond election so that they might ultimately make a fast buck?

Last week, I read a letter to the editor which referred to Jerry Jacobs, the Superintendent of the Canyon Schools, as a sucking bull calf which needed to be weaned. Please allow me a similar analogy. Could it be that Big Brother Sheepherder of Amarillo has acquired the services of a lead goat to lead the people of Canyon like sheep down a blind path which only leads to poor education for reasons of personal gain. If this is the case, it will only mean the rich will get richer and the children will get bused.

Sincerely,
Ernest Rosenbaum

Kudos to school board for hours of work

Letter to the Editor:

I wanted to write this letter to the editor before the last school bond election on Dec. 9, but kept putting it off until it was too late, so now I am determined to make my feelings known.

First, to those people who claim that we are educating Amarillo children, these kids are in the Canyon Independent School District and Randall County, and even though they live miles from the Canyon schools, these parents have done more work and shown more interest in the schools than many parents living right here in town. Having four children in three different schools in Canyon for the past ten years, I have spent a little time at these schools helping with various activities (not nearly as much as I should, however) and I can say that these South Amarillo people have done their part by working and also financially. I have found that many people who are against the new schools have never shown any interest until now. I realize that expenses and taxes are about to eat us up, but I also realize that our children's education and future are far too important to ignore. In spite of high taxes and expenses, many of us go right on living in high style and then gripe and complain about having to spend money on some of the really important things such as schools. Maybe six million dollars is a lot of money for two schools, and if they can be built for less, it should be checked into, but we all know that it takes a fortune to build anything these days, and that to cut too many corners is not feasible either.

Second, I think that Mr. Collins has a right to make his feelings known against the school issue, just as I am doing for the issue, but I wonder if he knows anything at all about what goes on in the schools, or if he's ever even set foot inside the schools. Not only has he not been here very long, but has spent very little in Canyon since his arrival as well. One also wonders why he doesn't want to make himself acquainted with the school board members or the school itself.

Third, I want to say "cheers" to the school board members for all the hard work and many hours they put in for us and as far as I'm concerned they should be getting paid for their work. These men have a most thankless job and I'm willing to bet that Mr. Collins and others who continually run down the school board would never give their time to do a job that concerns someone other than themselves. The school board members are doing their very best and don't forget that these men were elected to the positions by the majority.

Mrs. Fred Begert

Fulgenzi, Griffin can always resign

Dear Sir:

My gosh, their seats at the commission table aren't even warm and new electees, Fulgenzi and Griffin, are chompin at the bit to increase their commissioners' salaries.

Why didn't these gents, in the course of their campaigning, tell their electorate that if elected, they would have to have more money! The answer comes easy. In spite of all the money they spent on their campaign, they wouldn't have been elected. (After all who is going to hire somebody who is going to nag for a raise.) Now that they have the security of a four-year term, they can begin a relentless campaign to hike their pay.

If F and G find certain conditions of their job intolerable, they should quit. The public cannot tolerate a disgruntled office-holder. There are ample replacements available.

Since the commissioners as a whole believe that there is not sufficient public awareness of the time spent "commissioning" let a time clock or other suitable recorder be installed in the courthouse that will tell people what and where their commissioner is doing.

It is obvious that four years between election of commissioners is too long. The staleness that sets in with such lengthy unsupervised time in office should be altered. The term of election should be reduced to two years. The public then will not suffer under the dull non-productive electee who feels he has it made as an untouchable.

Those, too, who feel their talent can be best utilized elsewhere can choose not to serve.

Sincerely,
John W. McCann

Laymen and the law

By CARROLL WILSON

For just under a century, Texas lay judges, those who are not required by law to be attornies, have fought efforts by reformers to require that the state court system include only attornies on the bench.

This year, the matter will be plucked from the political battleground, most recently the scene of another reformist move in the Texas Constitutional Convention of 1974, and placed before the U.S. Supreme Court for consideration.

The court has been asked by attornies for a 23-year-old Kentuckian convicted of DWI by a lay county judge in his home county, to decide whether Kentucky's lay judge system violates the due process clause of the 14th amendment to the U.S. Constitution and whether lay judges are adverse to the public interest.

An article in the most recent Trial Magazine, published by the Association of Trial Lawyers of America, outlines the attack expected on lay judges from the attornies and bolsters the contention that lay judges should not be allowed with reports from various reformers.

Noting that 90 per cent of all criminal prosecutions in the nation are handled in the lower courts, the county or justice courts, and that the bulk of Americans get their first and perhaps only taste of justice at the lower court level, the magazine makes the attornies' point that if it is logical for the Supreme Court to require that for justice to be served a defendant must be represented by an attorney, it is also logical that justice will be served by requiring the defendant to appear before an attorney judge.

If the magazine article is representative of the quality of argument and evidence which can be expected before the court when it considers the question this year, the court will be asked to base its decision on theoretical discussion and circumstantial evidence at best.

Is it a fact, for example, that justice can be best or even better served by an attorney than by a layman? Is justice or the desire for justice the exclusive concern only of attornies? Or is justice a concept learned in law school?

If, as attornies in the case contend in their brief, lay county and justice of the peace judges in specific instances do not serve that theoretical standard of justice, would they buy the logical extension of their argument and accept that because certain attornies, specifically Richard M. Nixon, John Erlichman, John Mitchell, et al, in specific instances have not served that theoretical standard attornies should be banned from the courtroom?

If it were mandated that all judges in the judiciary must be attornies, we're not sure the quality of justice would be improved an iota.

Because, frankly, there are some practical problems, too.

Like money. Attornies, even those fresh from law school, expect and are disappointed if they don't immediately begin drawing above-average incomes. In most cases, at least in this part of the state, justices of the peace and county judges are compensated a layman's living wage, a wage which most attornies would find unacceptable. The alternative, where attorney-judges mandated, would be hiking salaries for dubious results, or forfeiting a portion of the judge's time so he could make outside money in practice.

A more moderate approach for reform is already underway. In Texas as well as in other states, legislatures are mandating that judges on all benches in the court system return to special schools for further education.

This, we think, is the sensible compromise.

Our world

Discipline is essential

By ANN BROWN

Discipline is essential to civilized society. People who cannot exercise self-discipline, or cannot accept it from the divine chain of command, must be disciplined by society — or society will collapse.

We all love discipline — for the other fellow.

People who do not smoke, drink, or swear simply cannot understand the lack of self-discipline of the people who contaminate themselves with such foul habits.

However, if we dig our graves with our knives and forks, work ourselves to death, or drive too fast to maintain control of our automobiles, we may end up just as dead as the victims of lung cancer, cirrhosis, heart attack, or apoplexy.

The happy, well-adjusted productive life is little more than a continuous exercise in self-discipline.

Nothing is more painful to live with than guilt. Even if one grows up in utter chaos, he has some concept of responsibility. And if he discharges none of his responsibilities, he suffers guilt feelings — at least on the subconscious level.

The only irresponsible, nonproductive people who appear to be happy are the young ones who are still chasing happiness — at parental expense.

When Edison's wife insisted he take a vacation from his work, he asked her if a vacation did not consist of doing exactly what one wanted to do.

She admitted that was a good definition.

"Then," said Edison, "I'm on vacation all the time."

Obviously, not everyone's work is as interesting and engrossing as Edison's, but whatever work we do, whether it is of our choosing or not, deserves our best.

It does, however, require much more self-discipline to discharge unpleasant responsibilities than pleasant ones. But self-discipline is like any other exercise: The more we practice it, the easier it becomes.

Certainly it is easier for a wife to cook and clean, and wash and iron for a husband who shows his appreciation by doing his best to supply her needs.

It also helps tremendously when a man tells his wife occasionally how much he appreciates the good meals she cooks, and the comfortable home she makes for him.

It is also easier for a man to slave at an unpleasant job if his wife and children show their appreciation for his sacrifices by discharging their responsibilities and being pleasant and cooperative when he gets home.

But how can parents who cannot maintain sufficient self-control to create a stable, comfortable, pleasant home for their little ones expect their children to exercise the self-discipline necessary to grow into productive adults?

And how can teachers who throw temper tantrums hope to maintain order in their classrooms? Are immature students expected to exercise more self-discipline than supposedly mature teachers?

Can parents, teachers, or other leaders expect to teach precepts without examples?

From the President on down to local authorities, the people in control of government ask the taxpayer to tighten his belt, while they go on a wild spending spree — with his money.

Every stable, productive life is built on a foundation supported by 4 pillars:

1: Perception. Unless one can see some kind of goal to work toward, he will probably spend his life stumbling around in the dark.

2. Performance. The only way to get anything done is to begin — and keep working at it.

3. Persistence. Every time a task is performed it becomes a little easier. One learns to drive a car only by practice. As long as he has to consciously think about applying the brake or throttle, he's not much of a driver. With practice it becomes automatic — and easy.

4. Perfection. If the person who craves perfection will exercise the self-discipline necessary to build the first three pillars, the fourth one will probably appear automatically.

A river is a living, moving, productive stream as long as it stays within its banks. When it overflows, it becomes destructive.

Parental discipline is indispensable, but it is limited by time and place. The key to a happy, productive life is self-discipline.

A complaint to add on trash litter

Dear Carroll:

Since some of our local people are complaining about the trash-littered alleys, I have a complaint to add.

Jerry Lehnick listed some city ordinances for our alley's trash cans. One ordinance in particular touched me pretty soundly.

This was that we provide tight-fitting lids for our cans. What I'd like to know is how we can possibly keep the lids on the cans — tightly — or just on.

In the first place — how can a lid even fit on a can that looks like it's been hit by a sledge-hammer on all sides?

Secondly, the lid's been flattened by being run over umpteen times.

No Way!

I've wired the lid on the fence — roped it to it — but still I go to the alley and there it lies — like it's been poured into the deep mud-ruts which beautify our alleys.

I guess I should be grateful though — the resemblance is still there when I need them — after I've hammered them out.

Crackdown on speeders begins

By LAURIE TELFAIR

As alert motorists, and probably everyone with a CB radio, have noticed, Canyon police have been cracking down on traffic violators.

Last week, from Jan. 14 through Jan. 21, some 87 motorists were cited by police for traffic violations of all kinds, expect parking violations.

Police Chief Al Stewart said, however, that his department was not placing any unusual emphasis on traffic control.

"I'll admit we're strict," he said. "But, I'd rather be strict than to have to work fatal accidents."

He pointed out that there has not been a fatal auto accident or pedestrian death in the city in the last four years.

"There are few cities that can say that. And it is more unusual because Canyon has a lot of vehicles," said Stewart.

"I guess society accepts deaths and traffic accidents," he went on. "But, if your son or daughter is killed, does it really matter if it's in a traffic accident or if someone takes a gun?"

Since 1970, the chief said, more Americans have been killed in traffic accidents than in all the wars the United States have fought.

"And right here in Canyon, we had more losses in dollar value last year from traffic accidents than we had from all the other crimes put together," Stewart said.

The majority of the traffic citations written last week were for speeding. Using the city's radar unit and speed gun, police officers have kept a close watch on speed, particularly along 23rd Street.

Stewart demonstrated the two units Thursday. First taking the lightweight, hand-held speed gun, which costs about $1,100, the chief stopped his unmarked vehicle in a parking lot on 4th Avenue, just east of the slight dip at about 18th Street.

The radar gun can be pointed in any direction, to clock cars meeting the patrol car or traveling in the same direction.

The city's unit was just overhauled at the factory and the accuracy was certified by the manufacturer, but police check the accuracy with a tuning fork before each use, and after each traffic ticket is issued. Earlier this week, the tuning fork was broken, Stewart said, and the speed gun will not be used until a new tuning fork arrives.

Traffic was light for the demonstration, but even so, most drivers were exceeding the 30 mph speed limit. Red numbers on a screen similar to a digital calculator dial blinked the speed of each vehicle.

The lights flashed, picking up the speed of a blue car several blocks away. 37 . . . 38 . . . now slow for the dip . . . 36 . . . 30 . . . now picking up speed again . . . 34 . . . 35 . . . the red lights on the screen flash . . . now the driver sees the radar gun . . . 32 . . . 29 . . . 28 as she passes the patrol car. The chief presses a button on the speed gun to demonstrate how a speed can be locked on the screen and the numerals 28 blink on and off.

The gun has a range of several blocks or about a half-mile. Thus, usually by the time a driver sees the unit, his car has already been clocked.

We moved on to 23rd Street. A marked patrol car was parked facing south with the city's other radar unit clocking speed, and the officer was issuing tickets if needed. Steward would issue no tickets during the demonstration.

We parked on a vacant lot, watching northbound traffic. It was a bad location, and one which police don't use, Stewart pointed out, because the patrol car was hidden by a sign and the area was just past the point where the speed limit changed.

A trucker spotted the police car almost immediately.

"No one will be speeding after this," said Stewart. "That driver will put it out over the radio."

Not a vehicle even approached the legal speed as they came into town.

The other radar unit, Stewart explained, is a more sophisticated and more costly system. Mounted in a patrol car, the radar is pre-set to lock in the speed which the officer sets on a dial. The unit cost about $1,700 several years ago and now sells for about $2,200.

Back on 4th Avenue, in the highly visible blue patrol car, Stewart demonstrated the radar unit.

The machine automatically calibrates, but a tuning fork is used to check it also, said Stewart. A console on the dash contains the speed dial and a screen on which the speed is registered. A high pitched whine, that becomes higher as speed increases, indicates speed also.

"When you work it so long, you can tell from the pitch when you're going to get someone," Stewart said.

With the dial set just a few miles over the speed limit, a speeding motorist soon came by. The radar whine grew higher as the vehicle approached and as the car exceeded the speed dialed on the unit, the radar locked in and the whine changed to a beep.

Even with the dial set much higher than the 30-mph limit, two cars triggered the mechanism.

"If an officer had been working this, those drivers would have probably had tickets," said Stewart.

A bicyclist came by, and registered 10 mph on the radar screen.

Most challenges by drivers apprehended by radar center around the accuracy of the machine, Steward said. Therefore, the units are double checked with each use.

Faulkner's life, works to be discussed Tuesday

The "Life and Works of William Faulkner" will be examined by Faulkner's nephew and a recognized Faulkner scholar at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the West Texas State University Activities Center.

Presenting the program will be James Faulkner, whose relationship with his uncle provides an interesting insight into Faulkner as a man, and Dr. Joseph Blotner, professor of English at the University of Michigan. Blotner has researched extensively Faulkner's works and literary style, and has written a two-volume biography on the Nobel Prize winner that was published by Random House in 1974.

Faulkner's writing reflects his intense involvement with the American South, where he lived most of his life. Fifteen of the 19 novels he published between 1926 and the time of his death in 1962 were set in the South, many dealing with the lives of the families of his fictional Yoknapatawpha County in northern Mississippi.

A fourth-generation son of an aristocratic Southern family, Faulkner knew well his subject matter and characters. His exploration of the Southern consciousness gave his writing a unique texture. A favorite Faulkner theme was the transition of a boy into manhood, as his idealistic protagonist collides with the society of the twentieth century with violence and sordidness.

Tickets for the program, sponsored by the WTSU Special Programs Committee, will be $2 for adults, $1 for students and free for WTSU students. They will be available beginning Jan. 19 at the Activities Center office. For more information, telephone 656-2296.

Water, housing and fuel are the three, absolute requisites of the pioneer and these three things were scarce on the Plains. The pioneer overcame them with the sod house, the dugout, the water barrel and for fuel he used the cow chips.

Much has been said and thought about the cow chips; they were also called prairie coal. Mrs. L. T. Lester, who came to the Plains with her husband in 1886, moved to Canyon in 1900 when her husband L.T. Lester established the first bank here.

They built their home one block north of the public schools; and said that they brought coal with them; using wood whenever they could find it.

They came up onto the Plains and for the first time built a fire of cow chips. This was too much for Mrs. Lester. She climbed up in the covered wagon and cried.

After a few minutes she became ashamed of herself. Telling herself that she was a grown woman and not a child, she climbed out of the wagon and, she said, "the supper smelled good and I was hungry."

As she came out of the wagon her husband came to meet her and said, "Hold out your hands to me." She did and he placed in one hand a lump of coal and in the other a cowchip, then he said, "Now close your hands," she did, he said, "Now look at your hands, the one the coal was in is soiled, the one the cow chip was in is clean. Smell of it, there is no odor."

He took her over to the fire and said "Smell what a clean, fresh smell the fire has, there is no smoke, only a clear, fine blaze."

She said she never objected to the cow chips again. She said it was different than what we know now, that for years the buffalo and cattle had roamed the Plains eating only grass. This had lain on the ground, washed by the rain, dried by the sun, they had become little pats of grass, convenient for fire.

The Kitchen Sink

By SUSAN WILSON

It was time, you see, for another exciting, educational fun-type outing for the children. Little things to us are big deals to them, you know.

We've been to football games, dance recitals, music concerts, movies, fairs and other places I've undoubtedly developed a mental block against.

So the other evening, while Hubby was attending meetings, I did the kids a favor and took them to watch a WTSU girls' basketball game. Our young next-door neighbor plays on the team and the girls wanted to watch her in action, so I dressed them all and off we went for a fun evening at the fieldhouse.

Now, before you think I'm a total nut for doing that on my own, I want you to understand that your young student basketball player's husband, the young musician, went along to help me with the kids. That made the beginning odds 3-2.

Immediately after I got the kids situated in the bleachers and just as the game started Julie announced on cue that she needed to go to the bathroom. Notwithstanding the fact that she had had an accident just before we left the house and that we were two miles from the latrine, Rebecca and I escorted Julie to the ladies' room where Julie was thrilled to discover three toilets. She tried out two of them and then I herded her back to the gym to find D'Arcy doing cheers in front of the stands.

I yanked them all into place, encouraged good behavior and admonished them to watch the game.

D'Arcy watched a little while and wanted to know if the zebras were the leaders. When I told her the zebras were referees, she returned to her cheerleading.

I let her go because I was busy with Julie who was crawling around under the bleachers and Rebecca who was trying her darndest to crawl onto the playing floor.

"Isn't this fun?" I asked the poor chap who'd come to help.

But, he just eyed his hands, turned longingly toward the door and ignored me. I understood. I would have ignored the situation, too, except it's hard to be indifferent to three kids calling you mommy.

Girls basketball does not keep three kids entertained for two hours. Nevertheless, I've tallied up the score:

D'ARCY — Drank 2 soft drinks, Threw one temper trantrum, Hit Julie once, Received three swats.

JULIE — Drank 1 soft drink, Spilled one soft drink, Ate 27 jelly beans, Threw two temper tantrums, Went to the restroom 9 times, Hit D'Arcy twice, Fell out of the bleachers three times.

REBECCA — Crawled onto the floor during the game three times, Threw two pens, three toys and one doll under the bleachers, Threw two temper tantrums, Ate five jelly beans, Put three half-eaten jelly beans in D'Arcy's hair.

In desperation, I finally gave Julie and Rebecca some trading stamps, the only thing in my purse not already mutiliated or earlier lost, to keep them occupied. Julie stuck them all over herself and the bleachers. Rebecca ate hers. I figure they wasted an alarm clock.

The kids were sorely disappointed when the game was over, having had so much fun, as D'Arcy said.

So was I, kind of. WT has a good girls' team. I hope I can watch them play someday.

Had a party? Or giving one? Tell The Canyon News about it. Telephone 655-7121, or stop by the News office on the south side of the square.

News brief

The Monday reception for West Texas State University artist-in-residence Paul Soldner will feature a slideshow of his works and a demonstration of "throwing."

"Due to unforeseen circumstances, Mr. Soldner will not be exhibiting his works as we had originally planned," said Dr. John Green, dean of the School of Fine Arts.

'Americanism' slides presented as club opens year

"Americanism" was the program topic of Heritage Woman's Club for their meeting Monday evening in the Lutheran Center where university history professors, Pete Peterson and John Culley, presented the program.

The program included a preview of slides for the 1930's on the Texas Plains and included pictures of the dust bowl days, the CCC camps and the university during the 1930-40 period.

They asked for club members and others of the community having pictures from the 1930's to contact them at the university as they desire to have slide copies made from any existing pictures available during that period.

The HWC meeting was opened with group singing of the "Star Spangled Banner" and the hostesses, Johnnie Gordon and Georgia Sorrells, carried the bi-centennial theme through the refreshment period by serving a flag cake.

In the club's business meeting members submitting reports to the district competition were recognized including Marian Marrs, Janie Loudder, Donna Cavrich, Mary Starzecki, Jan Winstead, Georgia Sorrells, Darlene Hollabaugh, Johnnie Gordon, Harriet Brandon and Darlene Plank. The purposes of the district reports and discussion of the club's activities during the past year was presented by Harriet Brandon.

In other business it was noted that the club's ways and means projects during the past year amounted to $1,471.38 with contributions of $1,338.65 being distributed to such projects as aid for the Kelly Forehand and Glen Williams family and to the Palo Duro Hospital defibrillator purchase project.

Plans were reviewed on the upcoming bi-centennial celebrations being planned in the county in a report by Darlene Hollabaugh. The club will be sponsoring a bake sale in early May at the Palo Duro Shopping Center and it was announced that items for Girlstown will be collected by the club at the February meeting.

Club guests were Mrs. Joe Kraai and Virginia Cotton, community education coordinator for the Canyon Public Schools. Mrs. Cotton discussed the spring community education programs to be available for the public and also discussed possible scholarship funds to help senior citizens attend the community education programs.

Heritage Woman's Club hostesses Johnny Gordon, left, and Georgia Sorrells kept the bi-centennial theme in mind by serving a flag decorated cake.

"Americanism" was the subject of history department instructors, Pete Petersen and John Culley, as they presented the program Monday evening for Heritage Woman's Club of Canyon and were presented by club member, Janie Loudder.

Indian artifacts displayed at meet

"Indian Artifacts" was the theme of the program presented Monday evening, January 19, for members of the Canyon Fine Arts Club with Dr. James Hanson, director of the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum, as guest speaker.

Dr. Hanson discussed the differences among the various Indian tribes and spoke on their customs and the misconception that all Indian tribes are alike. He displayed a variety of pottery, basket weaving, beadwork, peace pipes, rugs, robes and jewelry from the different tribes across the nation.

The meeting was held in the home of Guyda Webb anda brief business meeting was conducted by the president, Mrs. Margaret Harper, following the program. Included in the business discussion was a report from the club's committee headed by Claudia Neeley, which is preparing a wallhanging depicting the hsitory of Randall County for presentation to the Canyon Public Library for its new facilities.

The wallhanging committee reported that six of the ten panels being prepared are almost finished and work on other panels is being conducted each Monday evening by the members.

Impressive nuptial service unites couple in city church

Miss Mary Kathryn Harris pledged double ring rites of marriage with Johnny Lee Hoggatt in ceremonies January 16 at the First Baptist Church in Canyon.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Battle Harris of The Battleground, Rt. 2, Canyon. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Johnny O. Hoggatt of Hedley.

Ministers officiating were Dr. Strauss Atkinson of Plainview, former pastor with the First Baptist Church of Canyon, and Rev. Jim Hancock, the pastor of the First Baptist Church, Canyon.

Organist was Mrs. Meade Humphries of Canyon who presented traditional wedding marches and a pre-ceremony program including Indian Love Call by Rudo Friml; Somewhere My Love from Dr. Zhivago by Maurice Jarre; A Time For Us from Love Theme of Romeo and Juliet by Nino Rota; and Annie's Song by John Denver. Vocalist, Wayne Miller of Albuquerque, New Mexico, sang Twelfth of Never by Livingston previous to the ceremony and concluded the rites with the vocal presentation of The Lord's Prayer by Malotte. During the wedding ceremony, the vow exchange was preceded with the vocal presentation of Til The End of Time from Chopin's Polonaise by David Robinson.

Lemon leaves and emerald foliage formed the altar backdrop behind the 15 candle candelabrum which was decorated with large gold mums and gold daisy pom-poms. The kneeling rail was also decorated with lemon leaves and emerald foliage and each side of the altar was highlighted with a large urn of large gold mums, gold daisy pom poms and matching greenery. Matching 7 branch candelabrum with greenery flanked each side of the arrangement and corners of the rostrum had large arrangements of emerald greenery. The rostrum was covered with white from the main floor, up the steps terminating under the kneeling rail.

For her wedding the bride chose a dress of white miramist trimmed in medallion lace with seed pearl embroidery. The scoop neckline was trimmed with madallion lace and a ruffle edging embroidered with seed pearls. The full circle skirt of the wedding gown was held to an empire waist and trimmed with lace medallions and seed pearls with a wide ruffle at the hemline. The skirt's back fullness was swept to a chapel length train with continuing ruffle. The long medallion lace sleeves terminated in points at the wrist.

Her chapel length wedding veil and blusher of white tulle were held to a mother-of-pearl high Spanish comb with orange blossoms nestled against the comb. She wore a hand crafted gold locket, which was a gift from the bridegroom, and had the traditional blue wedding garter and a sixpence in her shoe. She carried a cascade arrangement of white roses, pixie carnations, stephanotis and baby's breath atop a royal blue Bible.

Mrs. Wayne Miller of Albuquerque, New Mexico served as the matron of honor and bridesmaids were Karen Thompson of Amarillo and Lee Hicks of Canyon. They wore identical royal blue knit floor length dresses with long ruffles at the hemline in a styling patterned after the bride's dress. Sleeves of the attendant's dresses were puffed and each wore a pearl drop necklace, which was a gift from the bride, with royal blue bows in their hair. They carried bouquets of gold mums and gold daisy pom poms.

Jerry Haralson of Canyon served as best man and James Hoggatt and John Leggitt, both of Hedley, were groomsmen. The male attendants had black tuxedoes with blue ruffled shirts. Ushering were Roy Harris of Morse, Ronnie Harris of Lubbock, J.B. Jordan of Albuquerque, New Mexico, Barry Cox of Amarillo, Randy Carter of Sundown and Ralph Mathis of Guymon, Oklahoma.

Ringbearers were Gannon Harris of Morse, nephew of the bride, who carried the bridegroom's ring and Battle Holt Harris of Lubbock, another nephew of the bride, who carried the bride's ring. They wore identical royal blue suits with gold shirts and black bow ties. The bride's ring pillow was heart shaped satin with lace trimming and the bridegroom's ring pillow was an oblong pillow of satin and lace.

Candlelighter was the bride's niece, ShaLynna Harris of Morse. She wore a royal blue knit dress patterned like the bride's wedding gown and had a wristlet of gold daisy pom poms with a royal blue satin bow in her hair. She wore a miniature gold cross which was a gift from the bride.

The flower girl was Darby Jane Harris of Lubbock. She was attired in a royal blue dress matching the bridal attendants and carried a white lace basket trimmed with gold daisy pom poms.

Wedding guests were registered by Mrs. David Rhodes of Albuquerque, New Mexico and Miss Kitty Mathis of Guymon, Oklahoma.

The fellowship hall of the First Baptist Church was the site for the wedding reception immediately following the ceremony. Reception hosts and hostesses included Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Blewett, Mr. and Mrs. Ocie Chism, Dr. and Mrs. W.J. Wooten, Mr. and Mrs. R.D. Wheelock, Mr. and Mrs. Gene Morrison, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Warren, Dr. and Mrs. E.B. Posey, Mrs. Grace Knighton, Mrs. Strauss Atkinson of Plainview, Mr. and Mrs. R.D. Killingsworth, Dr. and Mrs. Roland Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Jozach Byrd, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Raillard and Miss Anita Mathis of Guymon, Oklahoma.

A white net cloth with miniature royal blue accents covered the bride's table which held a three tiered wedding cake decorated with fresh daisy pom pom arrangements with a miniature bride and groom and love birds. The table was accented with bouquets of the bride and attendants. A silver punch bowl, crystal cups and plates and silver candle holders completed the table arrangement. Serving at the bride's table were Mrs. Roy Harris of Morse, Mrs. H.D. Morphis and Mrs. M.D. Lisman of Panhandle.

The bridegroom's table was laid with a royal blue knit cloth and was complemented with a silver coffee service and gold mum bouquets. The two tiered chocolate cake featured a ranch scene on top. Serving at the groom's table were Mrs. Ronny Harris of Lubbock, Mrs. Randy Carter of Sundown, Mrs. Jerry Haralson and Miss Janet Farmer, both of Canyon.

The newlyweds departed on a wedding trip to San Antonio following the reception with the bride wearing a floor length red knit dress complemented with white accessories and a white floor length coat. After January 20, the couple will establish their home at 325 N.E. 4th St. in Tulia.

A member of the Licensed Vocational Nurses Association, the bride nursed at High Plains Baptist Hospital in Amarillo for six years prior to the marriage and will be employed at a hospital in Tulia after February 1, 1976. She is a graduate of Canyon High School and attended West Texas State University.

Employed as a police officer in Tulia, the bridegroom is currently enrolled in Wayland Baptist College studying for a B.A. degree in law enforcement. He is a member of Lambda Alpha Epsilon fraternity for criminal justice.

Cooks may get a chance to make use of some of Mrs. Joseph Findley's French tinware in a gourmet cooking class beginning through the community education program Feb. 5. The class will feature a different area cook for each of the six weeks. While not definite about her menu, Mrs. Findley plans to teach an entire meal and is considering a menu featuring crepes de volaille — an entre crepe with chicken filling —, a simple salad and a dessert such as sorbet aux fraises or poire Melba. Pre-registration, with the $20 class fee, is required for the course.

Bridal fete is presented

Davida Emanuel, bride-elect of Bob Alexander, was presented with a miscellaneous collection of wedding gifts Sunday, January 18, at a festivity held in the Lillian Russell Room of Puckett Place Plaza.

Miss Emanuel, a teacher at Gene Howe Elementary School, will marry Alexander in rites January 31.

Bouquets of yellow daisies with baby's breath accented the reception tables. Special guests joining Miss Emanuel included her mother, Mrs. E.R. Emanuel of Amarillo, an aunt, Mrs. L. C. Bohanan, a sister, Mrs. R.S. Collier, a sister-in-law, Mrs. L.G. Emanuel, and an attendant from her bridal party, Judy Jackman.

Christian Church
(DISCIPLES OF CHRIST)

With Christian unity a reason for existing, Disciples shun dogma. It too often divides.

They are strong on freedom and diversity. Worship styles vary widely. So do life styles. From energetic social adtivism to deep personal piety. They feel Christians can determine through study and prayer what God requires.

The Lord's Supper, or Communion, is open to all Christians. It's celebrated weekly as the central part of worship. Lay persons regularly preside over Communion.

Congregations accept members on a simple confession of belief in Jesus Christ. Baptism follows. Immersion is the form, though we receive unimmersed transfers.

Creeds seldom are used. Never as tests of correct belief.

FAMILY LIFE CONFERENCE
FEBRUARY 6 - 7

In our day, the family has a crying need. Divorce is a critical problem. Paul Harvey recently quoted a study which had determined that 1 of every 3 couples presently married would be divorced within the next 5 years.

Families are in financial bondage — caught up in the snare of the world system — not knowing how to get free!

Families are torn apart by the fast pace of life — with such a great number of activities in different directions.

Families are heartbroken because of rebellious and self-centered children who want to go their own way!

To help solve this problem--we want to provide training in spiritual principles for the home and allow close fellowship with a visiting team of laymen, trained in this field of the family from Oklahoma City. They will be coming at their own expense to share with you some exciting principles they have been putting into practice in their own families.

MAIN SPEAKERS

Gene & Irma Warr, from Oklahoma City will be speaking on issues of vital concern to all. Mr. Warr is head of the Gene Warr Foundation and is experienced in conducting Family Life Conferences having conducted them both in the United States and other countries.

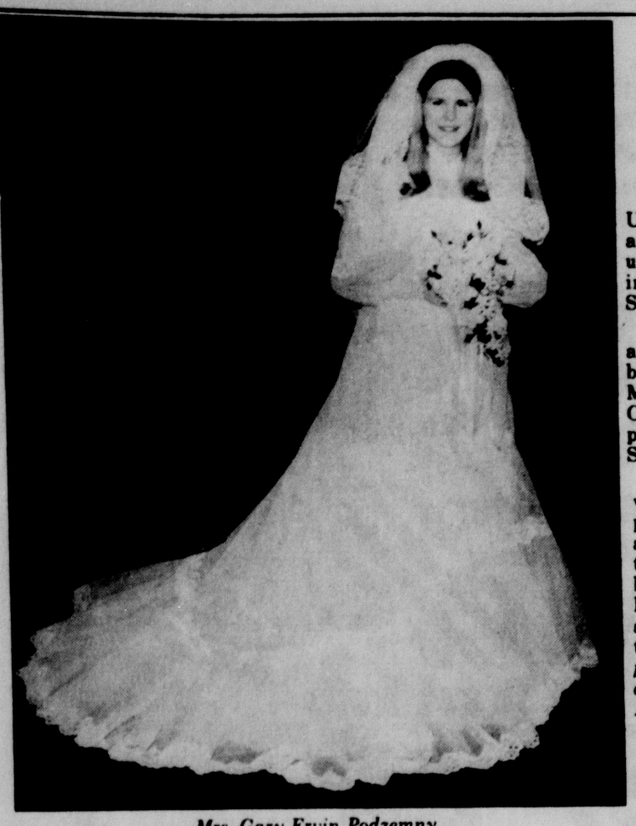
Double ring nuptial rites confirmed during afternoon ceremonies



Mrs. Gary Ervin Podzemny
nee Teresa Lynn Williams

St. Mary's Catholic Church at Umbarger was the setting for the afternoon rites Saturday which united Miss Joan Marie Frische in marriage with Charles Stocker.

Monsignor Schafle officiated at the double ring ceremony. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Frische of Rt. 1, Canyon and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. E.A. Stocker, also of Rt. 1, Canyon.

Matching large bouquets of white gladioli with blue pompoms were used to decorate the altar. Prenuptial musical selections were presented at the organ by Mrs. Vincent Ramaekers with Miss Donna Kendall of Hereford serving as vocalist and presenting Whither Thou Goest, Prayer for a Love Like Christ's, the Wedding Song, and On This Day, O Beautiful Mother.

Henry Ramaekers of Umbarger served as lecturer and the mass servers included Frank and David Frische, brothers of the bride, and Mark Przilas of Dalhart, a cousin of the bride.

For her wedding, the bride chose a long dress made of silk organza featuring an empire styling with princess neckline and long bell sleeves with sculptured Venice lace accents. The A-line wedding skirt was framed with two bands of Venice lace and a full flounce at the hemline and was swept to the chapel train with sculptured Venice lace framing the hemline.

Her wedding veil was two tiers of bridal illusion framed by lace and was attached to a cap covered with Venice lace and seed pearls at the fingertip length. Her cascading bridal bouquet featured white baby roses, pompoms, stephanotis, baby's breath and was designed with a lift out corsage. In keeping with the bridal tradition, the bride borrowed her grandmother's silver rosary for accent of the bridal bouquet, had new earrings which were a gift from the bridegroom, carried her great-grandmother's linen handkerchief as something old, and had the traditional blue wedding garter.

The bride's sister, Elaine Frische, served as maid of honor and other bridal attendants included Mrs. Glenn Lott, Mrs. Henry Ramaekers and Miss Aline Stocker, sister of the bridegroom. The bridal attendants wore matching dresses of knit in a floor length styling with empire waists, long sleeves ruffled at the wrist, and v-shaped ruffled necklines. To accent their French blue dresses each carried a nosegay of blue carnations accented with baby's breath, white pompoms and satin streamers. Each attendant wore a silver chain with cross which were wedding gifts from the bride.

Glen Stocker, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man. Groomsmen included the bridegroom's brothers, Jeff Stocker, Billy Stocker and Gene Stocker.

The bridegroom's nephew, Johnny Magera, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Magera of Houston, served as the ringbearer. The flower girl was Kimberly Wieck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wieck of Canyon and a cousin of the bride. She wore a French blue knit dress matching the other bridal attendants and carried a white lace basket filled with blue and white carnations.

Ushering for the ceremony were Eugene Schenk of Vega and Phillip Brandt of Umbarger. Kate Manz of Canyon presided at the guest book.

St. Mary's Parish Hall at Umbarger was the setting for the wedding reception which featured layered wedding cakes connected by a center stairway on which were arranged miniature figurines representing the attendants from the bridal party. The cake was served by Mrs. Larry Sanders of Canyon and Mrs. Kenneth Wieck of Hereford.

Tea and coffee were served by Miss Angeline Haschke and Miss Juanita Hartman of Umbarger and reception tables were attended by Miss Arlene Koch of Umbarger and Miss Faunette Kincade of Canyon. Out-of-town guests registered at the occasion were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Schuele of Columbus, Neb. and Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Flies of Elk City, Okla.

The couple will establish their home at Vigo Route, Tulia after Feb. 1. The bridegroom is currently engaged in farming. He graduated from Canyon High School in 1971 and served with the United States Air Force for four years. The bride is a 1971 graduate of Hereford High School and prior to the marriage was employed with Dawn Co-op.

HD council meet slated Monday

The regular monthly meeting for the Randall County Home Demonstration Council is scheduled at 2 p.m. Monday, Jan. 26, at the Farm Bureau Building in Canyon.

Nuptial ceremonies during weekend

St. Joseph's Church in Amarillo was the setting for the double-ring marriage ceremony which united Miss Teresa Lynn Williams and Gary Ervin Podzemny on Friday evening, Jan. 23. The candlelight service was conducted amidst large urns of pink gladioli and cranberry carnations.

Father Raymond Eisele officiated at the marriage ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Wendell Williams of 4921 Harvard, Amarillo, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ervin Podzemny of Rt. 1, Box 577, at Hollywood Road.

Presented in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a formal floor-length wedding gown of Angelmist peau de soie and re-embroidered Chantilly lace over bridal taffeta designed with a high neckline, empire waist, long Camelot sleeves and semi-bouffant skirt with full back. Inserts of lace enhanced the neckline, bodice, sleeves, skirt and hemline of the wedding gown. A wide ruffle of peau de soie and lace complemented the wedding gown and the full back extended into a sweeping chapel-length train.

Her wedding veil of imported illusion was bordered with a wide accent of Chantilly lace and was held to a lace coif. She carried a cascade bouquet of white carnations and gypsophelia accented with pink cymbidium orchids and streamers of white satin ribbon.

Kay Scruggs of Amarillo served as matron of honor with Martha Boggs serving as bridesmatron and Lesleigh Cash attending as bridesmaid. The bridal attendants wore formal-length gowns of cranberry taffeta with an overlay of flocked voile featuring rose designs. Each carried a cascade of pink and cranberry carnations complemented by gypsophelia and cranberry streamers.

Tim Podzemny, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man. Groomsmen were David Podzemny, brother of the bridegroom, and Kendall Edmondson, both of Amarillo.

Miss Patricia Brierty of Amarillo served as organist. Ushering were Ken Cantrell of Amarillo and Russ Williams, brother of the bride, also from Amarillo.

A tiered wedding cake was served at the reception following the ceremony at the CYO room of St. Joseph School. The table was laid with a cloth of Champagne lace and the triple-tiered wedding cake featured pink and white with an arrangement of cranberry and white carnations on the top tier. Antique silver candelabrum completed the setting.

The couple will establish their home on Hollywood Road where the bridegroom, a former student of Canyon High School, is engaged in farming. He is also employed with Roof Craft of Amarillo.

The bride is a graduate of Tascosa High School and attended Amarillo College. She is employed with the dietary department of High Plains Baptist Hospital in Amarillo.

Indoor gardening is one of the pastimes enjoyed by Mrs. Cristler Crain, who has been named as the Randall County Conservation Homemaker of the Year.

County homemaker nominee in annual state contest

Palo Duro Soil and Water Conservation District announced this past week that Mrs. Cristler Crain, south of Canyon, has been selected as the Randall County Conservation Homemaker of the year.

Mrs. Crain's name will be submitted for consideration by the Fort Worth Chamber of Commerce for further selection in the statewide contest of the annual program along with Dr. Tom Gerald of Amarillo, who was named as the county's Conservation Farmer of the Year.

As a homemaker, Mrs. Crain has filled the home pantry and freezer from a bountiful summer garden. She had her first attempt at raising eggplant turn out well this past summer and is now contemplating adding butternut squash and vegetable spaghetti to the garden rows this spring.

Annually she preserves the foodstuffs from the family garden through canning, freezing and preserving. This year she tried several new recipes on the preservation of foods including a turnip kraut, and canned cinnamon cucumber rings along with pickled peppers.

Gardening and cooking are two favorite hobbies for Mrs. Crain. She enjoys crafts of all types including tole painting, decoupage, indoor plants and is presently learning to knit.

An avid reader, Mrs. Crain's current interest is in the field of tracing her ancestral heritage. She is a member of the Genealogical Society and was recently approved for membership in the Colonial Dames of the 17th Century, which limits its membership to individuals who can trace their ancestry back to dates preceding 1700. She is also active in the Esther McCrory chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution which includes Canyon, Amarillo and area members.

The daughter of a West Texas area preacher, Mrs. Crain was born at Matador and earned her degree in home economics at West Texas State. She taught a while and was married to Cristler Crain at Tell in Childress County. The Crains returned to Canyon in 1939 and have farmed in the county since that date.

The Crains presently farm 300 acres in the county raising alfafa and spring wheat along with cattle. The Crain farm includes three irrigation sprinkler systems.

As the parents of two sons, Claiborn and Jerry, the Crains have long been acquainted with 4-H leadership work. Their son, Claiborn, his wife, Carol, now reside in Austin where he is the director of media services for the Texas Senate. The Crain's son, Jerry, resides in Amarillo where he is employed with John Deere Implement. His wife, Sheryl, is a substitute teacher with the schools there. The Crains have one grandchild, Crystal, in Austin.

Mrs. Crain's homemaking interests have included home demonstration clubwork since the mid-40's. She is the current president of the Pleasantview Home Demonstration Club and was named as the club's outstanding member previously. She has also worked with the county HD Council and is currently the vice president and recreation chairman of the council. In other areas of home demonstration, she has been the THDA director for the county which is a liasion office between the county and state in fields of home demonstration study.

She also holds membership in the Canyon branch of the American Association of University Women and is on a board for that group at present.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Crain are active members of the First Baptist Church in Canyon. He is a deacon of the church and she is presently serving as the director of media services for the church. She also serves as the local church representative for the Associational Libraries group in Amarillo, and heads that methods study group as chairman.

Elected to serve with the 1976 officers for Canyon Study Club were Andrea Metcalf, left, ways and means chairman and Elaine Peeples, yearbook chairman.

Les Amies Juniorette Club for Canyon High School Girls took a collection of canned goods to Girlstown USA at Borger recently and presented a monetary gift of $30 for their support. The club members and residents of Girlstown are pictured at the facility in Borger.

Three proposals for new schools due decision Tuesday

Canyon School Board members must make a decision Tuesday night on how many schools and what kinds they will ask Canyon district residents to approve for construction in a February bond issue.

Three basic proposals have been presented the board by the district staff, including a $6 million construction package which voters defeated in a Dec. 9 bond issue election.

The information on this page has been compiled by the school staff, architect and financial advisor outlining the three proposals.

While the school district said prior to the Dec. 9 bond election that taxes would be hiked by about 26 per cent to finance the $6 million bond issue proposed at that time, no similar figures have been released yet on the two other $5 million proposals.

Appeal, letter cloud issue

Another appeal by the Amarillo School Board and a confusing letter from the counsel for the Texas Education Commissioner served last week to cloud further the status of a 160-acre tract of land in South Amarillo.

Among questions only partially answered at week's end in the wake of the developments were these:

*Has the transfer of the Glendale subdivision, the 160-acre tract in question, actually been effected?

*If not, does the appeal filed by the AISD board stall the transfer?

*If so, does the appeal also serve to hold up the possible issuance of bonds for new school construction by the Canyon School Board next month?

*Does the Texas Education Commissioner intend to hear the appeal or accept the appeal?

The questions were left unanswered late Friday because Chester Ollison, legal counsel for the commissioner, could not be reached throughout the day in Austin; Canyon School District Attorney Elton Cox was out of town Friday, according to his office; and R.A. Wilson, attorney for AISD, was also out of town Friday, according to his office.

The AISD board filed an original appeal in late December, contending a motion passed by the Randall County Board of School Trustees requiring AISD to pay CISD tax income from the Glendale Subdivision for the next four years was capricious and unauthorized by law.

The appeal was filed with the education commissioner.

Early last week, Wilson filed another appeal with the commissioner, this time directed at a motion passed by the county board on Jan. 15 approving a metes and bounds description of the CISD with the 160-acre tract deleted.

The second appeal, Wilson says is his notice, "is given in the contingency that the Jan. 15, 1976 order finalizing district lines is to be viewed as the final action of the Randall County Board of School Trustees from which the appeal must be taken."

CISD Financial Advisor Bob Davis said Friday it is his opinion that the appeal of the Jan. 15 action of the county board places the land transfer question in litigation and bonds will not be sold until the litigation is completed.

Elbert Morrow, bond attorney in Dallas handling the CISD bond issue, said two weeks ago an appeal by the AISD of the boundaries decision of the county board would amount to litigation which would hold up the sale of bonds.

It would also hold up Justice Department approval of the boundaries of the CISD, which approval Morrow said must be gained before the bonds can be sold.

In the meantime, Supt. Jerry Jacobs has told school board members here, CISD and AISD officials are negotiating over the amount of money the AISD should pay the CISD for revenue loss anticipated because of the land transfer.

AISD Supt. Bob Ashworth said Thursday it is his board's contention they will pay nothing for lost revenue, but will act only as intermediaries if the land developer, Glenn O'Dell, will agree to pay the cost as assessed by the county board.

The motion passed by the county board assesses the costs against the AISD and not the developer.

A letter from Ollison received by the various parties last week confuses the matter.

Ollison says in the letter the right way to proceed on the matter is local negotiation, and he cites several laws, none of which relate to that contention.

"I don't know what it means to tell you the truth," Dist. Atty. Randall Sherrod, who is attorney for the county board, said.

But, County Judge Woody Pond, ex-officio superintendent of county schools, interpreted the letter to mean that the AISD has no basis for appeal.

Regents meet

Regents of West Texas State University will consider the reappointment of President Lloyd I. Watkins during executive session when they meet on the Canyon campus Monday.

The agenda item is the last of a lengthy list of items the regents are scheduled to consider during their meeting, which is to begin at 1:30 p.m. in the activities center.

Watkins is now in his third year as president of the university. He was originally hired in 1973 for a three-year term.

The president has received the backing of the WTSU Faculty Council in a recent resolution sent to regents by the faculty group. The resolution urges Watkins be reappointed.

Election of board officers and changes in the make-up of the board's executive committee are also scheduled for regent consideration.

Former board chairman Cloyce K. Box of Dallas was not reappointed to the board by Gov. Dolph Briscoe last fall and Fort Worth Regent Don Curry, formerly secretary of the board, has been acting as president. Vice Chairman B. Raymond Evans of Tulia declined reappointment to the board last fall.

By-law changes proposed for consideration Monday would, if passed, mandate that new officers be elected annually and that any officer could serve one additional consecutive term. The executive committee under the proposals would consist of the chairman, vice chairman, secretary and one elected board member.

Other items scheduled for regent consideration include:

*Authorization for the university to employ an architect to design a house to be the official residence of the university president. The proposal calls for a house to be constructed northeast of the activities center on land now owned by the university. The house would contain about 3500 square feet of living space and would cost about $80,000. Watkins currently draws $12,900 per year in housing and utility allowances from the university to keep his own house.

*A new due process procedure for students who challenge a semester grade.

*Naming the new fine arts building now under construction on campus the Mary Moody Northern Hall. The Moody Foundation contributed $250,000 for construction of the facility.

*Several construction projects, including renovation of Buffalo Courts and a new underground utility tunnel system.

Missing from the agenda for Monday's session is discussion of possible formation of an area-wide Athletic Council which would aid WTSU athletics in fund-raising efforts. Nor is discussion scheduled on a proposal made in December by Houston Regent Dee Osborne that the institution investigate the possibility of hiring a public relations man.

Both issues were discussed at the December special called meeting of the board.

Blood needed

Friends of Cal Stephens, commander of Canyon VFW Post 5681, are asking that local residents donate blood this week to help replace units used by Stephens while hospitalized in High Plains Baptist Hospital in Amarillo.

Emerson Haraden, chaplain of the post, said Stephens was hospitalized recently with a ruptured artery and has used several pints of blood.

A spokesman for the Coffee Memorial Blood Bank of Amarillo said blood can be donated either in Amarillo or at the Canyon branch office and specified to replace the blood Stephens has used.

The Canyon branch is open from 12 noon to 3 p.m. on Mondays and Thursdays. It is located at 17th Street and 4th Ave.

The spokesman said those donate to replace the blood used by Stephens should be certain to tell the workers here that the blood is intended for replacement.

Stephens' wife, Mary, said Friday her husband suffered a ruptured aorta on Jan. 14 and remained in intensive care at High Plains until Thursday when he was put in a private room. She said he has already used 15 pints of blood.

areas of constructive criticism.

Shelly also opposed Munsell's motion, but introduced his own ideas, which he declined to put in form of a motion.

"Any evaluation solely by the faculty will have the problem of credibility," he warned. "The last evaluation was viewed as a vendetta."

He said he based his opposition in the feeling that "this is something the administration should be doing every day — it's their responsibility to do it every day."

A third point of opposition, he said, was that there are certain areas the faculty is not competent to evaluate.

"I can support a resolution calling on Dr. Watkins to set up his own formal method of evaluation, a method including both faculty and administrators, because three things could be accomplished," he said. "One, the administration can be improved by evaluation. Two, it would offer concrete evidence to justify raises in the administration, and three, accountability in the faculty and the administration can build a better WTSU."

Following Shelly's presentation, Munsell withdrew his original motion, substituting another: that the faculty council go on record in support of a system of faculty evaluation of administrators, which procedure will be worked out by a subcommittee of the faculty council.

Shelly contended the new motion would not be effective, either.

He argued that the administration should take the lead in evaluation of itself, with faculty participation.

"If they believe in evaluation for faculty, don't they also believe in it for administrators?" he asked.

He asked for specificity in the motion.

"Let this come from the top man down," he said. "I don't see how he can refuse. What's good for the goose is good for the gander."

The motion was defeated 6-5 with one abstention.

Girls lose

Canyon sophomore girls dropped a game Tuesday, losing 50-25 to Tulia.

Linda Warren, with 10 points, was the only CHS player in double figures.

The Canyon girls played a good first half, said coach Paulette Burrhus, and were down by only five points at the half. But after the break, Canyon went scoreless in the third quarter and hit only eight points in the fourth period.

"The Tulia pressure defense did what it was supposed to do," Miss Burrhus said. "We had a lot of turnovers and didn't get the ball back to the offensive half of the court. They really got after us in the second half."

Junior high girls playing Tulia Monday won one game and lost two.

The ninth grade white team won 42-27 with Nancy Walling taking game scoring honors with 20 points.

She was backed by Beth Wanamaker with 14 while on defense, Linda Plain and Anita Busby were standouts.

CJHS seventh grade white team lost 38-18. Tennie Cooper and Judy Orrick both scored 8 points each to lead the Canyon team.

The eighth graders lost 40-23. Cindy Mattox led the Canyon girls with 13 points and Staci Liles added the additional 10 but a Tulia girl, Harris, took scoring honors with 30 points.

Police charge two with pot

Two university students were charged this week with possession of marijuana and a New Mexico man was sentenced to six months in jail for possession.

City police Thursday arrested Terry Clay Weatherford and Richard William Hayes and charged them with possession of less than two ounces of marijuana. The two WTSU students were both in a vehicle driven by Weatherford when the police stopped them for speeding and smelled marijuana.

Aldo Carlo Vallecorsa of Albuquerque was sentenced earlier this week to six months in jail and was fined $200 after pleading guilty to possession of less than two ounces of marijuana.
